

L'dor Vador (From Generation to Generation)

The survival of the Jewish people has always depended on the act of passing on our traditions from one generation to the next, L'dor Vador. At the Beth-El Religious School, we teach our students that we are each an important link in the chain of transmission. It is our duty to learn the ways of our people from our predecessors so that we may someday be able to pass the torch to those who come after us. This year, we will be taking extra time to weave this important theme of L'dor Vador into everything we do at Religious School with the hope that students will live this value not just at Beth-El, but also at home and out in the world.